SOME OF THE CONCEPTS

Why did we create this and how do we use it?

Well, first of all we love you all—more than we can express. We love God, too. And because we thought it might be good for us to share some experiences, we designed family worship @home as an additional weekly option to online worship (which you can find on Facebook at First United Methodist Church-Celebration Center).

The website is designed so you can share it with family who may not have Facebook. We don't have to be in the same room for much of what is written here so, get creative. You could call family or friends and face time each other to share the experience.

You might want to pick a set day and time to do your family worship.

You might want to include calling grandparents or grandkids and get them in on this.

You might get co-workers or neighbors to join in (remember you don't have to be in the same room—the beauty of cell phones).

Use your kitchen table or some other space conducive to having conversation. Considering making a cross and lighting a candle. They can be placed in the center of the table. You could add an open Bible and then read from it when you get to the Scriptures. If you have children you might want to draw a fish on a baggie and let them make their "fish offering" there for a time they will bring it to church. You might want to send an offering either through the mail 1701 W. 32nd St or go to secure give to give online at

Some of the experiences you could share back to our Facebook page (pictures, short videos of activities you pursue, record a prayer for others doing converSAYtions or to encourage people to check it out).

These aren't perfectly written. But all are shared with love for God and love for you and yours!

Take one card from each category (color coded). Mix and match. If someone in your family says, "I have a Scripture to share" use that one instead of a yellow card.

The All 4 tab at the top already has selections created for you, if that is more your style.

More than anything, don't lose hope! Call the First Contact number for a prayer to start your day. Watch our online worship when it works for you and engage in converSAYtions!
